The opening of the bazaar of the Episcopal, Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital at the Hotel Raleigh Tuesday afternoon marked the occasion as one of the most elaborate spring festivities of the year. Every booth reflected the beauty of the season because of the wealth of spring blossoms, which shared popularity only with the fanciful electrical displays. Tables of useful articles, fancy articles, hand-made handkerchiefs, and parcel-post packages attracted many purchasers. One of the most artistic booths, conducted by Mrs. E. J. Sedgewick, offered tempting dainties of fancy cakes and pastries. Home-made cakes, candies, and punch proved as popular as ever to those who visited the bazaar. During the afternoon the dainties, at which many well-known patronesses were present, was noticeably brilliant and especially interesting because of the dancing contest, which added to the enthusiasm of the dancers. A large number of persons remained for the dinner, which was served from 5 to 5 o'clock. This was managed by Mrs. E. J. Bentley, Mrs. G. M. Foote, Mrs. J. L. Parsons, Mrs. J. B. Hurnsley, Miss A. E. Edwards, Mrs. E. M. Miss, Mrs. Oliver McGrunder, Mrs. F. B. Roberts, Mrs. H. N. Moss, Mrs. William M. Dove, Mrs. Burton Ross, Mrs. G. W. Atkinson, Mrs. W. E. Falconer, Mrs. E. B. Powell, Mrs. G. G. The quacking geese, carefully tended by Miss Jessie Lane, lived up to its fame for laying golden eggs. The children who visited the haystack where the cunning old creature hid its head bribed the bird with bright coins to tell where its precious eggs lay hidden. The evening dancing of the bazaar added materially to the demand for food and other refreshment and closed the first night amid a swing of gaiety. The refreshment committee consists of Miss Mary A. Mason, Mrs. E. Oliver Bell, Miss Esther K. Bowen, Mrs.
